FREE PRINTABLE

The ADHD Overwhelm Kit

Five pages for the days your head is too full: a low-battery day page, a brain dump, the four-box sort, 10 ways to start when you're stuck, and a dopamine menu.

From the One-Page ADHD Daily Planner by Redraft Studio

An organizing tool, not medical advice. Use what helps, skip the rest.

TAB 1 · TODAY

Low-battery day

For tired, foggy, overwhelmed or sick days. Two minutes, one must-do. Stopping there is allowed.

DATE _____ BATTERY ▭ ▭ ▭ ▭ ▭

THE ONE MUST-DO

ONE KIND THING FOR ME

FIRST TINY STEP

BASICS

◯ Meds ◯ Water ◯ Food ◯ Rest

EVERYTHING ELSE CAN WAIT. PARK IT HERE:

If you did the must-do, today counts. If you didn't, today still counts.

DATE _____ BATTERY ▭ ▭ ▭ ▭ ▭

THE ONE MUST-DO

ONE KIND THING FOR ME

FIRST TINY STEP

BASICS

◯ Meds ◯ Water ◯ Food ◯ Rest

EVERYTHING ELSE CAN WAIT. PARK IT HERE:

If you did the must-do, today counts. If you didn't, today still counts.

TAB 3 · BRAIN

Brain dump

Everything on your mind, in any order: tasks, worries, ideas, that email. Don't sort while you write. Getting it out of your head is the whole job.

Next: sort it on the four-box page. Most of it won't go on today's list, and that's the point.

TAB 3 · BRAIN

Sort it: four boxes

Take each line from the brain dump and drop it in one box. Only three can go to today's page.

Do today

Only if it's urgent or tiny. Max 3 go to today's page.

Schedule it

Give it a day on the week page. Not today.

Ask someone

Delegate, ask for help, or body-double it.

Drop it

Not now, maybe never. Crossing it out counts.

TAB 3 · BRAIN

Stuck? 10 ways to start

Knowing what to do is rarely the problem. Starting is. Try one of these, then circle the ones that work for you.

1. Set a 5-minute timer. You're allowed to stop when it rings
2. Make the first step stupidly small: 'open the laptop'
3. Say the next step out loud
4. Body-double: call a friend or join an online co-working room
5. Do the worst 2 minutes first, then decide
6. Move to a different spot
7. Put on one 'work song' and start before it ends
8. Pair it with something you like (snack, podcast, nice pen)
9. Write the task on a sticky note and put it where you'll see it
10. Lower the bar: 'bad first draft' is the goal

If-then plans

Decide in advance, so future you doesn't have to. If I open my phone to check the time, then I put it face down and look at today's page.

IF (THE MOMENT I USUALLY GET STUCK)...	THEN I WILL...

My own starting tricks

Dopamine menu

When your brain is bored, it goes looking for a hit, usually your phone. Pick from your own menu instead. Fill it in on a good day.

Starters (5 min)

Dance to one song · Step outside · Cold water on your face · Text a friend · Stretch

Mains (30+ min)

A walk with a podcast · Cook something new · A hobby project · Exercise class · Call someone you love

Sides (with boring tasks)

Music or a podcast · A fidget · A favourite drink · Standing desk or a walk · A body double

Desserts (enjoy, with a timer)

Scrolling · One episode · A video game · Online shopping cart (not checkout)

How to use it: starters to get moving, mains when you have time, sides to make boring tasks bearable, desserts in small doses with a timer.